I am currently studying at a state university and will be graduating in December 2025. Fatec is a prestigious technology college located in the state of São Paulo.

I have three years of experience in administration and logistics, which has contributed to my personal and professional growth. I learned to manage my emotions, tackle challenges under pressure, meet deadlines and estimates, and encountered continuous learning situations.

A crucial part of this journey was the chance to self-teach and master fundamental tools from the ground up. When faced with obstacles, I sought guidance from experienced colleagues and analyzed my environment to find effective solutions. I believe that these challenging experiences have been crucial to the evolution of my communication skills, my approach to learning, my problem-solving abilities, my personal growth and other virtues.

I am continuously seeking ways to acquire new skills. I recognize that the technology job sector is exceedingly competitive, which is why I endeavor to be engaged with diverse types of technologies and subjects. I consume courses, collegiate content, videos, articles, news, tools, and other forms of media that may benefit me.

Currently, I'm exploring Python and its frameworks, but I strive to acquire knowledge about diverse subjects including data analysis, cloud computing, DevOps, artificial intelligence, management methodologies, programming techniques, and other related topics that pique my interest.

I think it's important to show myself to the world in my own way. I believe that everyone has unique ideas that they can share and that having perspective, education, and humility are crucial parts of being a good person. I believe that having different perspectives is what brings people together and create a Network.
